

Writing for emagazine – Students

We're always keen to get new writers for the magazine, particularly students. As we only publish four issues a year, it can be quite competitive to have your article accepted.

Here's what you need to do to stand the best chance of being published by us.

- First make sure you are familiar with the type of article we publish in emagazine. Think about topics and texts that will be interesting for other A Level students.
- Next email Barbara Bleiman (barbara@englishandmedia.co.uk) with the text for literature or topic for language plus working title for the article to give us an idea of the angle you're taking. We aim to reply to all suggestions within two weeks – it might be a bit longer in the holidays. If we like the sound of your proposed article we'll talk to you about which deadline you might aim for, although please feel free to send your article as soon as it is ready.
- Articles should be between no more than 1500 words and written for students not teachers. Shorter articles are fine!
- Aim to be lively, engaging and interesting to read. Make sure if your submission is an essay, that it's within our required word limits and would work as an article. Please make sure all quotations have been checked against the original.
- Use single quotation marks for any quotations, not italics, colour or bold.

Submitting your article

- Include the following information in the file name: Your initials and an abbreviated version of the text or topic title. For example: emag_LW_Gatsby.doc
- At the end of the article include the full name by which you want to be known in the magazine and a short credit line (no more than 20 words in total). We will use this at the end of your article.
- Email articles to Barbara Bleiman. (We can no longer accept handwritten articles.)

Fees

The current typical fees for articles from student writers are:

- £75 for a full article published in the print magazine (and included in the online PDF and searchable archive)
- £10 for a short item for 'englishoutthere', the newsy pages of the magazine
- £30 for an item that's only published online, in the emagplus section of the emagazine website.

Terms

- Unless otherwise negotiated, copyright remains with emagazine for the year following publication. After this time, permission to reproduce the article should be sent with full details of its usage to Lucy Webster \(lucy@englishandmedia.co.uk\). You will then be sent details of the acknowledgement line that must be included.

And finally: some warnings!

- We cannot promise to publish an article until we have seen the final piece. EMC reserves the right not to publish articles that are submitted, whether commissioned or unsolicited.
- We only pay for articles which we publish.
- Although we try to edit with a light touch, sometimes we need to do a bit more to an article. We will always let you see – and comment on – the edited version before we publish it.
- If your submission is based on an essay you've already written, make sure that it is within our required word limits and would work well as an article.
- We expect you not to send your article to other publications until and unless we've contacted you with a refusal.
